Gentleness and Innocence
Gentle Luring to New Adventure
Cycle of Power: Autumn and Spring.

The deer represents innocence and a return to the wilderness. Antlers are symbols of the connection to higher forms of attunement. Deer antlers can be a signal to pay attention to your inner thoughts and perceptions as they are probably more accurate than you think.

If a deer has entered your life, look for new perceptions and degrees of perceptions to grow and expand for as much as the next five years. It can indicate that there will be opportunities to stimulate gentle new growth increasingly over the next few years.

The deer leads us back to the primal wisdom of those old teachings, where it reminds us to establish a strong healthy connection with the child before we expose it to many people and strange energies. It is a reminder that there is a tradition that is natural and suitable for family units and for the health of the young. It is for the child's best interest. Check to see if you have gotten too far away from the role that would be most beneficial for you at this time.

A deer's senses are very acute. Its vision is designed for clarity at a distance. It is especially effective at detecting contrasts and edges in dim light. Its hearing is equally acute. Anyone who has a deer totem will find increasing ability to detect subtle movements and appearances. They will begin to hear what may not be said directly.

When a deer shows up in your life, it is time to be gentle with yourself and others. A new innocence and freshness is about to be awakened or born. There is going to be a gentle, enticing lure of new adventures. Ask yourself—are you trying to force things? Are others? Are you being too critical and uncaring of yourself? When deer show up there is an opportunity to express gentle love that will open new doors to adventure for you. I am Grateful.
